Samuel Swift sold the entire tract to Michael Korn, Jr., by deed dated July 25, 1832; this is the last sale of the entire 300 acre tract, it being later conveyed in smaller parcels. This sale recorded in Book 13, page 289.

Agnes Korns and Edmund L. Korns Tract.

Korns and Agnes, his wife, to Agnes Korns by deed of Jan. 15, 1881, and recorded in Deed Book page

Simon L. Korns Tract.

The residue of the southern half of the original grant which was sold to Simon L. Korns by Michael Korns in 1871, was reduced to 105 acres and 80 perches after the Bruner, Milton Weighley and part of the Agnes Korns tracts had been sold off; the coal of this residue was sold to Oliver Hoblitzell by Simon L. Korns and Agnes, his wife, by deed dated Sept. 28, 1900, and recorded in Deed Book 107, page 473.

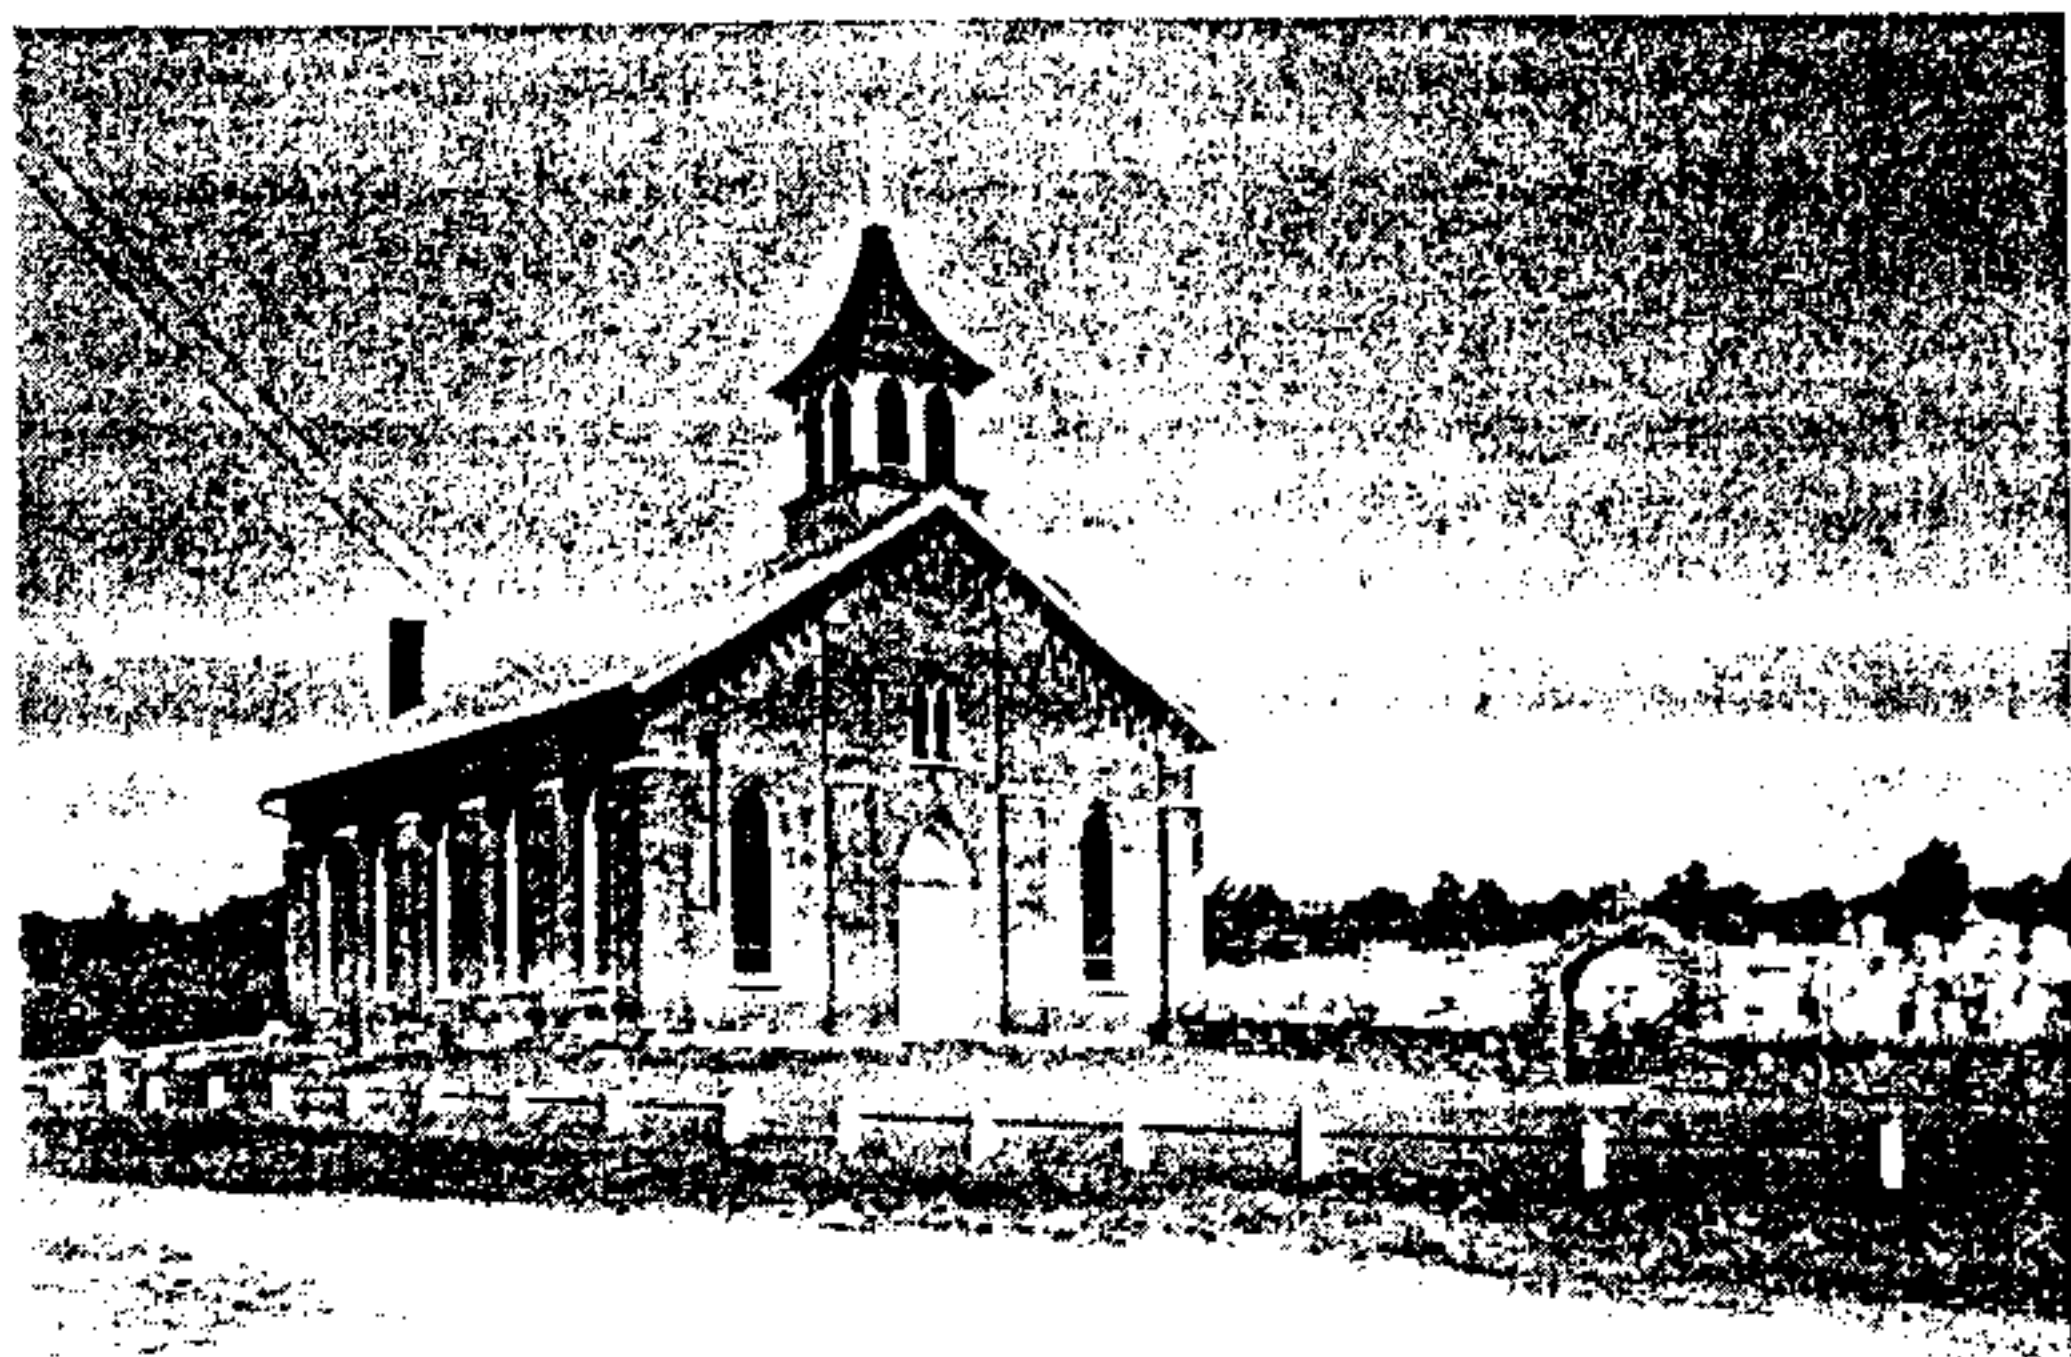

Until recent years the surface was owned by Maury Griffith, but is now owned by Nelson R. Miller Tract.

Beams Reformed Church and Cemetery, Jenner Township, Somerset County, Pennsylvania, where Michael Korn, Jr., family were members and where many of his descendants are buried.

General Comments.

About in 1913 the Consolidation Coal Co., successor of Oliver Hoblitzell in the title of the coal in this vicinity, sunk a shaft and built a town on the John Biesecker tract which adjoins the original grant above referred to.

Only the "E" seam coal was developed from this shaft due to the "C" Prime coal being in fault at this location.

The "E" coal is 300 feet under the surface at this shaft and the "C" Prime coal lies 90 feet below the "E."

The mining of the "E" coal under the tracts mentioned as part of the original grant, has been completed; headings for the development of other coal are still open but further mining is not contemplated.

This "E" coal seam is about 5 feet thick; however, only 34 inches near the top of the seam is merchantable and was mined; the quality of this "E" coal is the best in the vicinity.

The "C" Prime coal under the above tracts is mostly in fault, some coal was recovered from the eastern portion of the original grant, being about 50% of the eastern half.
